Purge Quiz Now Hits Shut Banks

By ALFRED WHELTON

In another spectaalar move for "purge" of state department head, Governor Saltonstall's secret investigators hae opened a probe of the state banking commissin, it was learned today.

The principal target, it was learned, is the so-called closed bank division of that office.

W. P. HUSBAND, JR.

The objectives are William P. Husband, Jr., bank commissioner, and John Lacey Delaney, appointed two years ago by former Governor Hurley as director of the closed banks division.

Information unearthed by investigators is reported so far as:

1—Real estate dealings allegedly not in the interests of those whose deposits were tied up in the closed banks.

2—Huge fees to attorneys in connection with liquidation of some of the closed banks.

TRACE PROMOTIONS

3—Mysterious promotions of newer employes in the state department over the heads of those with lengthier service.

4—So-called "compromises" on notes and other collateral, allegedly to the detriment of depositors' funds.

5—Sale of assets at huge discounts, including valuable realty parcels, through straws to the interest of leading politicians.

More than 20 suits are threatening against the Commonwealth as a result of real estate transactions involving only one of the banks, investigators have been told. Any number of other suits are known to be in the making.

"STRAW" DEAL

One such transaction involves a parcel of land that is not far from Kenmore square. It was transferred through a "straw" to a person who held a commanding position in state office during the recent administration.

Another centers around a house in Jamaica Plain that was refused a legitimate purchaser, then was completely renovated and sold to a political favorite for a price far under that offered by the first bidder.

Expenses of the renovatiem were borne by the closed bank and came out of funds that could have been saved for percentage payments to depositors.

KIN TO FAVORITE

The occupant is a close relative of one who was close to former Governor Hurley during his entire term of two years, it has been disclosed to the Saltonstall investigators.

One of the principal items in the banking division probe concerns the fees paid to attorneys for liquidation of many banks that closed as far back as December 1931, continued closing through 1932 and finally met the closing crisis with the advent of the

CHILD BARES BRIDAL TANGLE

Alleged neglect of an adopted child revealed a strange marital mixup today in which two Boston couples found new mates but forgot to get divorced.

Out of the mixup came a charge of polygamy against Santo C. Postizzi, 28, chef for a South Sudbury roadside barbecue.

Police complaints charge that Postizzi first married a Miss Julia White eight years ago at Providence, R. I., but that the couple ended their marriage without the formality of divorce.

Postizzi, the complainants continue, later married Mrs. Mary Pellegrini of Westland avenue, Back Bay.

Alleged neglect of a state ward adopted by Postizzi's first wife led to an investigation and the uncovering of the marital mixup.

In East Boston court today, Postizzi was held in bonds of $500 for a hearing Saturday. The former Miss Pellegrini assisted in obtaining the bail.

Postizzi' firt wife, who i now Mrs. Julia White Postizzi Kelly of Rand place, Roxbury, was wed last June to a Leo Kelly, police charged today.

She is awaiting a hearing on an appeal of a sentence imposed in Roxbury court after pleading guilty to a charge of polygamy. She admitted the charge, but objected to the sentence imposed.

2 Win Race Board O.K., Oust Riordan

Governor Saltonstall took another thrust at Democratic office-holders today at the same time he completed his first reorganization of a state commission.

By failing to nominate for reappointment, the governor removed Charles F. Riordan, former chairman of the Democratic state committee, from a post that he held three years with the department of agriculture.

He also removed Ralph S. Bauer of Lynn, powerful political figure in Essex county, from his trusteeship of Essex Agricultural College.

The events were coincident with confirmation of Harold R. Allen of Brockton and Harold Pierce of Milton as new members of the State Racing Commission.

Allen and Pierce succeed George G. Moyse of Waltham and Thomas R. Foley of Brighton, "lame duck" appointees of former Governor Hurley, who resigned under the Saltonstall fire of last week over racing dates awarded to a proposed track at Westport.

GALUSHA NAMED

Mark Galusha of Williamstown, was named by the governor to succeed Riordan as director of livestock and disease control in the state department of agriculture. Riordan's term expired Monday. The position pays $4000 a year.

Bauer was succeeded by Frederic Winthrop of Hamilton.

Confirmation of the two race commissioners gave the new governor complete control of the commission. Chairman Charles F. Connors is slated to continue in that capacity.

Chairman Connors had consistently voted against hasty granting of race dates in the closing days of the Hurley administration, while Moyse and Foley had defied a request of the incoming governor for delay.

NO REARDON DECISION

As was generally expected, in view of his statement of last night, the governor made no move toward ouster of James G. Reardon as state commissioner of education.

Reardon is on the firing line as a result of a report from Attorney-General Paul A. Dever that hurricane contracts awarded by the department of education should be declared invalid.

At the governor's personally conducted hearing for Reardon's ouster, Reardon said he acted under orders of former Governor Hurley in signing the contracts.

He announced he would take his fight to the courts should Saltonstall move for his ouster before the executive council.

Callahan Warns Saltonstall On $10,000 Probe

State Public Works Commissioner William F. Callahan, one of the targets for the purge of state departments by Governor Saltonstall, hurled a challenge to the governor and Republicans in general at the State House today.

Appearing before a legislative hearing, Callahan protested the governor's request for $10,000 as expenses for investigation of the public works department.

"I welcome any investigation but I warn that the governor and the Republican Legislature will have to take full responsibility for any delay in flood and rehabilitation work that might result from it," he told the legislative Ways and Means Committee.

Callahan asserted that his department has been investigated several times and that each time it had been given a "clean bill of health."

Open New Fight On Dictator Bill

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18 (INS)—The administration's new fight to put President Roosevelt's government reorganization program through Congress was opened today by Representative Cochran (D.) of Missouri, who introduced a resolution proposing a special House reorganization committee.

The President and his supporters moved to revive the reorganization plan despite a major defeat suffered in the last Congress.

Under Cochran's resolution, the committee would be given wide powers to consider reorganization matters and its bills would be given preferred status on the House floor

Give Her Name? Listen, Mister!

A woman's mind, that great institution, asserted itself today.

Ervil C. Kennett, of Central avenue, Needham, was driving along Walnut street, that town, and stopped for a traffic light. Another car bumped him into the rear of his car.

The driver, a woman, refused to give her name and drove away in a temper. Kennett jotted down her number.

A policeman called at her Newton Highlands apartment and asked why she had refused to divulge her name.

"Why should I give my name?"

"Five yedrs ago a man bumped me like that and wouldn't tell me his name."

Wellesley Wife Reveals Triangle

TRIPLETS Georgine, Pauline and Geraldine Burgoyne of Waltham, who will be three years old in April. They attribute their good health to a diet of lolly-pops.

Tells Court of Trysts, Gun Threats in Home

Still wearing a wedding ring she said he bought her and admitting she kept clandestine trysts with him once a week for four years, a pretty Wellesley wife testified today against a Boston hotel employe, telling an amazing story of an alleged domestic triangle.

She accused the defendant, Irvin Towns, 38, of brutally beating her and her well-to-do husband, William Lawrence of Audubon road, Wellesley.

Determined to make "certain revelations" to her husband, Towns held him prisoner all night in the Lawrence home, threatening to shoot him and to brand him with a red-hot poker, Mrs. Lawrence said.

BOUGHT HER RING

She appeared as a witness in Dedham district court.

Towns was held in bonds of $1000 for the Norfolk county grand jury.

In cross-examination, Mrs. Lawrence, dark-haired fur-wrapped and modishly attractive, was asked:

"Are wearing a wedding ring?"

"I am," she testified.

Q—Did your husband buy it? A—No.

Q—Did Mr. Towns purchase it? A—Yes.

In direct examination, Mrs. Lawrence testified:

"On January 12, I met Mr. Towns on the Worcester turnpike and went riding with him.

"We had an argument. He struck me and knocked out my tooth. We rode around some more, had some drinks and went to my home.

HEATED UP POKER

"My husband came home about midnight. I ran to the door to meet him.

"He saw Mr. Towns and said, 'What are you doing here?'

"Then they started to fight. Mr. Towns hit my husband. I ran ran out of the house. When I came back, my husband was sitting in a chair with Mr. owns standing over him.

"He told my husband to sit there, if he tried to get up he would kill him. He warned me if I tried to get help he would kill the three of us.

"He made me go down cellar and get wood to keep the fire going. Then he put a poker in the fire until it became red-hot.

Heroine Mother Fights for Life

The interne and the nurses rolled the cot gently through the door and along the corridor and past the man who stood there, bleak-faced, his back against the wall.

From the wan, girlish face on the pillow, the dark eyes of the woman stared, unblinking, in coma, at the whitewashed wall, then at the man who waited, then at the grill of the hospital elevator as the cot moved down the hall.

The man turned, involuntarily, as if he might cry out, or follow. But he turned back at the arresting word of the approaching doctors.

His eyes held the unspoken question.

"An even chance," they told him.

The man said nothing.

"An even chance to live."

The man said nothing. But his eyes said:

"And an even chance to die."

The cot rolled soundlessly on its rubber wheels into the lift. The elevator moved up and away.

So they told Wilfred Steele today that his brave young wife had an even chance to live or to die.

The even chance was more than she asked for herself in that split second of late yesterday when she threw her body between a careening automobile and her two children, her four-months-old baby, Dorothy Ann, and her four-year-old

Lollypops Help Make Triplets Model Children

She's the mother of her home town's one and only set of triplets.

And her standby in all the storms and stresses she faces single-handed in playroom and nursery is a simple and effective one—

Lollypops!

There you have it, Doc Dafoe.

Try lollypops on the Dionne quins, when they get fractious.

Mrs. Burgoyne says she finds lollypops better than spankings, better than scoldings, better than solitary confinement in dealing with her three healthy, mischievous, look-alike daughters, Georgine, Pauline and Geraldine.

They're not naughty often. But lollypop rewards encourage them to put down their double ration of cereal daily, quaff their bone-building draughts of milk and polish off their spinach and other vitamin-rich vegetables.

The Misses Georgine, Pauline and Geraldine Burgoyne will be three years old, April 9. They like to have their mother read to them about the Three Bears and their big bowl, middle-sized bowl and little, teeny-weeny bowl.

But the Burgoyne triplets have three bowls just alike, three hair-do's just alike, three pert little faces just alike.

Doctor Brings Woman 'Back From Death'

NEW YORK, Jan. 18 (AP)—A "return from death" was recorded today by Dr. Maurice R. Goodwin, Bronx physician, in reviving Mrs Bella Sutterman, 57, after she had apparently succumbed to an attack of asthma.

A heart stimulant, artificial respiration and police inhalators, Dr Goodwin said, brought the woman "back" in a feat which he described as happening "only once in ten lifetimes."

The physician said that when he arrived at the Sutterman home he found relatives and friends bewailing her as dead.

"One look at her and I thought she was dead, too," he said.

Despite this, he administered artificial respiration "without much hope—and in about four minutes detected a breath.

Three hours later her breathing became stronger and her life was revived.

Waterbury Jury Finally Complete

WATERBURY, Conn., Jan. 18 (AP)—The jury in the Waterbury million-dollar fraud trial was completed today with the selection of Woodford H. Apgar of New Haven as the second alternate juror.

Apgar was the 551st veniremen to be questioned.

Baby Critically Ill From Wrong Dose

A slight improvement was reported today in the condition of 11-months-old Harold Melcher, Jr., of Burrill place, South Boston, critically ill at City Hospital.

His parents said they had given him camphorated oil by mistake.

DEATH CLAIMS RICHESON TRIANGLE SURVIVOR

AVIS LINNELL

Death—that final curtain sure to ring down at last on all human tragedies—had dropped forever today on one of the most dramatic love-crime triangles in Boston history.

Sole surviving character in the triangle, for more than a quarter of a century, was Miss Violet Edmands, one-time Brookline heiress.

Her body, wasted by the fatal illness to which she eventually succumbed, lay in New York today, awaiting burial.

Claimed by death long before her were the two persons with whose tangled, sorrowful lives hers was once innocently linked.

One of these persons, Miss Edmands' unwitting love rival, was sweet-faced, ill-starred young Miss Avis Linnell.

She was slain, by poison.

And the faithless sweetheart who murdered her—and who died in the electric chair for his deed—

CLARENCE RICHESON

was the Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson.

Violet Edmands of Brookline was his fiancee.

The Avis Linnell slaying and the consequent unmasking of Richeson's disloyal duplicity broke Miss Edmands' heart, her closest friends always believed.

She never married.

As soon as she was able, she put her Brookline home and her Boston memories as far behind her as she could.

She spent years in Japan as a social worker. More recently, she devoted herself to unselfish and untiring philanthropies in New York.

Her death, reported here today, came in her 54th year.

Death's curtain, at last, was down on the stage where Avis Linnell, Clarence Richeson and Violet Edmands played the roles an unkind fate assigned them.

Windsors Plan March U. S. Trip

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 18 (INS)—The Duke of Windsor and his wife, the former Wally Simpson, for whom he gave up his throne, will visit New York, Los Angeles and San Francisco in March, it was reported today.

Elsa Maxwell, entertainer of the socially elect and a close friend of the Duchess of Windsor, said concerning the reported visit:

"It is my understanding that the Duke and Duchess of Windsor expect to sail for the United States in March.

"They will visit the duchess' former home in Maryland, later will come to Los Angeles and Hollywood, will go then to be guests at the San Francisco World's Fair and afterward will return east to visit the World's Fair in New York."

The report also was given strong substantiation today when it became known that Comte Ambrose Dukotyn-Jacyscyn du Bek, social secretary to the Duchess of Windsor, is here assertedly making discreet preparations for the arrival of the Duke and the American-born Wally.

Friend Finds Windsors 'Frightfully Happy'

LONDON, Jan. 18 (INS) — The Duke and Duchess of Windsor are "frightfully happy" and seemingly have not a care in the world.

This was the word brought back to London today by one of the duke's oldest friends after a 10-day visit at the Windsors' residence, the Chateau La Croe at Cannes.

"I have never seen the duke in better health," he said. "He has the appearance of a man in his 30's."

The duke's visitor confirmed the International News Service dispatch of January 4 which told in detail of Windsor's hopes of returning to England some time this summer with his duchess, the former Mrs. Wallis Warfield.

U. S. Duchess Broke, Hopes For Film Job

NEW YORK, Jan. 18 (INS)—pressed for money, the beautiful American-born Duchess of Leinster, who is separated from her husband, is considering a moving picture career, the Daily Mirror said today in a copyrighted story.

If she decides to recoup her fortune in Hollywood, the Douglas Fairbankses will be her sponsors. She will leave New York in 10 days to visit the Fairbankses at their California home.

"I've never been on the stage," said the Duchess. "My husband's first wife was May Etheridge, a musical comedy star, and Denise Orme, whom he'll undoubtedly marry if I divorce him, was also a singer. I'm sure I could learn to act. I am a pianist and have been told I play exceedingly well."

Mrs. Ten Eyck Wendell, one of society's best known patrons of music, said the Duchess plays as well as many professionals.

"My income is depleted," continued the Duchess, whose grandfather, the late Andrew Nutting, amassed a fortune as a Brooklyn merchant.

"I've spent much of my own money paying the Duke's debts. I've also spent much money rehabilitating his estates, which I'll lose if the estates are seized by creditors."

Hunt Man, Motive In Hammer Killing

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 18 (AP) — Detectives looked for a man and a motive today in the mysterious hammer slaying of blonde, attractive Mrs. Carrie Lelah Romig, 55-year-old wife of a young ten-cent-store lunchroom employe.

Mrs. Romig, formerly married to a wealthy Hoosier manufacturer, was found dead last night on a bed in her five-room first-floor flat. Deputy Coroner Norman R. Booh = said she had been struck in the right temple and forehead with a smal clawhammer which lay nearby, broken in two.

Investigation followed up two leads, one a statement of the dead woman's husband, Daniel Romig, 28, that several diamond rings and other jewelry were missing from the apartment; also that a man she knew had called on her some time in the day.

FINDS HAMMER

Dr. Booher, who recommended a homicide verdict to his chief, indicated she had not been attacked.

The husband found the body when he got home from work. The front door was open. Two nearly empty coffee cups, cigarette stubs and candy were in the living room. The death hammer had been taken from the pantry.

Mrs. Clara Corey, 60, on the third floor above, told McCarty she had directed a strange man to the Romig apartment at 8:30 or 9 A. M.

Custodian Elder Riggens said he heard footsteps in the flat between 1 and 1:30 p. m.

THRICE MARRIED

The deputy coroner indicated Mrs. Romig had been dead from four to six hours when found at 6:30 p. m. He said the cause was brain concussion.

A sister, Mrs. A. J. Wernert of Shelbyville, said Mrs. Romig was born in Randolph, Ill., with the maiden name of Hougham, and had been married twice before.

She was divorced three years ago, the sister said, from Fred W. Kennedy of Shelbyville, owner of the Kennedy Carliner & Bag Company, with plants there and in Canada.

Blast Charles River Ice in Hunt For Girl's Body

Newton and Metropolitan police dynamited the Charles river today in effort to recover the body of little Helen Orrok, 8, of Waban, who was drowned with her three-year-old brother, John.

After an all-night search, the ice was blasted a short distance above Newton Lower Falls. The body has not as yet been found.

Meanwhile residents of towns through which the river flows demanded that the Metropolitan District Commission take immediate action to prevent further such tragedies.

The commission was urged to erect fences and other safeguards to prevent children from running out on the treacherous ice.

A third child, Ann Walker, 7, was saved by the heroism of Richard Madden, 18, of Quinobequin road, Waban.

Mystery Taxi 'Pact' Aired

With citizens aroused over stories of slush funds, Christmas gifts, free cab rides for legislators and evasions of present taxi stand regulations, the Boston city council today was due to take its turn again at quizzing taxi company officials.

The public hearing of the council on the question of abolishing private taxi stands was scheduled for this afternoon in Faneuil Hall, where the finance commission yesterday heard charges of attempts by hotels to violate the law banning rental of public stands.

SECRET LINK SOUGHT

Mysterious links between two companies supposedly competing with each other and the matter of free books of passes, probed by the finance commission, were expected to receive the councilors' attention today.

Ferdinand Kirchgassner, president of the Central Cab Company, declared during the finance commission's hearing that a Back Bay hotel official had offered cab stand concessions at two hotels in return for payment of "garage rentals" of $200 monthly to a relative of the hotel man.

Kirchgassner explained that he was to rent 20 mythical stalls and arrange for his cabs to be seen occasionally in the vicinity. He would thereby be able to testify under oath he had not violated the law by paying hotels for the special taxi stands in front of their doors.

OFFICIALS' STATUS TRACED

Deepest mystery yet to be solved at the hearings is the status of Calvin E. Hodson of Auburndale, president of the revived Town Taxi Company, who admitted he is also a salaried employe of the Checker concern.

David Lasker, chairman of the finance commission, asked Hodson what work he performs for the Checker firm.

"I couldn't tell you," was Hodson's answer.

After affirming Lasker's query that "the only thing definite about your work is the pay check you get," Hodson admitted organizing the Public Safety League which campaigned for a No Vote on the question of public cab stands.

Same Thieves Steal 4 Cars

The same joy-riding auto thieves used and abandoned four cars today and stirred up a hornnets' nest of police activity in Waltham, Concord, Lincoln and Watertown.

Patrolman William T. Foster of the Concord police fired two shots in the chase.

First auto stolen was taken in Waltham and abandoned in Concord. The thieves then tried to take a car out of a yard, but Charles O. Preble, owner, chased the thieves away.

Within an hour they had stolen two more machines, leaving one in Concord, the other in Watertown.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18 (AP)—Secretary Hull said today American diplomatic and consular officers in the Barcelona area were fully prepared to evacuate Americans from Barcelona if that became necessary.

Ledge Percher In Doctor's Care

Thwarted in his attempt to emulate John Warde, who held thousands in suspense for hours and then leaped to his death from a New York hotel ledge last summer, Robert Kimball, 40, of Boston today was under a physician's care.

Kimball, reported suffering from a nervous breakdown, was pulled from a narrow ledge at Hotel Statler, 12 stories above the ground, by two men who grasped his arms while others detracted his attention.

Kimball had fought the would-be-rescuers for more than an hour.

Readville Row Over Dog Track In Tobin's Lap

Fate of the proposed Readville dog track was placed today directly "in the lap" of Mayor Tobin, in spite of the mayor's illness.

Since Monday, residents of Readville and Hyde Park have been up in arms over the grant given unanimously by the City Council to use the old Readville trotting park for the races.

The state racing commission ruled yesterday that it could not entertain protests nor call public hearings until a petition for license had formally been presented.

The situation, therefore, was left to Mayor Tobin, who has been ill at home since last week. According to observers, there are three points that must be settled by the mayor:

The mayor can call for a public hearing and place it in charge of the City Council president in the event that he is still too ill to attend himself.

The mayor can sign the measure and grant authority for the track.

He can let the council action become effective by failing to take action within the statutory 15 days.

Those protesting the license are not standing by, however. Many are clamoring for an investigation by the finance commission on the question of the sudden passing of the measure by the City Council.

WILLIAM POWELL BETTER

Taxi Robber Suspects Face Court

Hailed by police bullets after a mile chase, two Greater Boston men faced court today as the bandit pair who kidnaped and robbed a taxicab driver of $8.

The chase started when the victim, John M. Dorsey, 45, of Newcastle road, Brookline, leaped from his cab as the bandits held a gun against his side. He landed almost in the path of a police car on West Newton street, South End.

Refusing medical aid, Dorsey shouted he had been robbed and Patrolmen John J. Dunne and Harry J. McGonagle took up the chase, first by automobile for more than a mile, then on foot as their prey abandoned their car on Massachusetts avenue, South End, and fled.

They surrendered after two shots had been fired over their heads, and one allegedly threw the holdup gun into a waste can where police recovered it.

At the station they were said to have admitted hiring the cab in Allston, then robbing Dorsey on Tremont street, South End, and holding him prisoner until he defied their threats and leaped from the cab. Police said one man lives in Waltham, the other in Watertown.

BABES HUNGRY, SHE CASHES BAD CHECKS

FRAMINGHAM, Jan. 18—A distraught mother, weeping bitterly in district court here today, admitted cashing seven worthless checks totalling $175 so her babies wouldn't go hungry.

Mrs. Gladys M. Breton, 24, attractive blonde, pleaded not guilty to a larceny charge and was held in $300 bail for trial Jan. 28.

Judge Blodgett twice halted proceedings as the defendant broke down on the stand.

"Bills! Bills! Always bills I couldn't pay," she sobbed.

"My husband works at night and makes very little. I have two babies and they had practically nothing to eat over the week-end. So I decided to do it."

According to police, Mrs. Breton, who lives in Hopkinton, visited gasoline stations and stores in Framingham and cashed checks signed by a prominent Framingham physician.

She explained she was employed by him as a nurse, police said, and identified the checks as payment for her services.

Shoplifting Queen Seized

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 18 (AP)—Three men and a self-tyled "queen of the shoplifters" were jailed today on suspicion of operating a "cash on delivery" service which offered stolen finery at bargain prices to film and radio folk.

More than $15,000 worth of furs, lingerie, perfumes and other articles were recovered at an apartment and at a 15-room house by raiders.

Film and radio personages, the raiders said, were believed to have been invited to buy luxury goods at sweeping discounts, any article selected to be delivered within 48 hours.

'Hell Ship' Case Tales Enthrall Coast Jury

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 18 (AP)—The "Hell Ship" cruise of the Metha Nelson—as fantastic a story as ever an old salt spun—intrigued a federal grand jury today.

Resuming an inquiry into charges of mutiny aboard the schooner on her voyage to Cocos Island last fall, the jury also was expected to hear tall talk of search for buried treasure, a narrowly-averted love duel and other melodramatic adventures.

Summoned for questioning were: Marino Bello, stepfather of the late Jean Harlow, and his bride, Evelyn Husby, a nurse he married on the cruise; Richard Gulley, cousin of Captain Anthony Eden; Countess Dorothy DiFrasso, Hollywood social arbiter, and her maid, Felomena Renzy.

Accused of mutiny were Charles (Champ) Segal, Hollywood promoter, and Abe Kapelliner, a steward, but they in turn charged Skipper R. B. Hoffman of the schooner with brutality and anti-Jewish persecution.

A $7500 damage suit has been filed by Rolf Baarman, boatswain, charging the skipper slugged him with leg irons while attempting to chain him to a stanchion.

Battle Lines Drawn for Fight Over 'Quoddy'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18 (INS)—Battle lines were taking form on Capitol Hill today for a swift showdown on President Roosevelt's surprise plea for completion of the Florida ship canal and the Passmaquoddy power project in Maine.

The two projects were among the most-bitterly debated issue raised in Congress in the early days of the New Deal. Work on both was suspended after millions had been spent getting them underway. Their completion would cost an aggregate of $160,000,000, it is estimated.

Proposal that construction on both projects be resumed was contained in a letter frfom the President to Chairman Mansfield of the House rivers and harbors committee. Mansfield said legislation to expedite the work will be drafted at once.

Scarcely had the President's letter reached Mansfield than Senate opposition was evidenced. Senator Byrd (D.) of Virginia, a militant leader of the economy bloc, said:

"I was against 'Quoddy' when work on it was abandoned and I am more opposed now. There will be a lot of Democrats in the Senate fighting its revival."

Rep. Brewster, (R.) of Maine, an ardent advocate of the power project, after a conference with Mansfield, said he would draft a bill for resumption of work on Passmaquoddy. Florida representatives are expected to offer legislation to complete the canal.

Discussing further the "Quoddy" project would harness the tides in the Bay of Fundy for hydro-electric power, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"It is my belief that the time will come when there will be a joint agreement between Canada and the United States for the joint development of a large project which would utilize all tidal power in that bay on both sides of the international line."

WOMEN RECRUITED FOR SPAIN INDUSTRY

BARCELONA, Jan. 18 (INS)—Scenes of unparalleled drama were enacted in this besieged capital today as women were recruited to run industries while every able-bodied man rushed to the front in a final effort to stem the insurgent advance.

The rumble of big guns was audible in Barcelona for the first time since the civil war began.

When the distant booming of artillery first was heard, the sounds electrified the city's desperate populace. While the people remained calm, Barcelona presented an intensely active picture, with military trucks and ambulances racing through the streets in an unending stream.

Everywhere it was evident that government Spain was digging in for a "last ditch" battle which may decide the war.

Thousands of women abandoned their homes and volunteered to take over jobs left behind by men.

Even wounded veterans of other battles, returned from the front for periods of recovery from old wounds, answered the frantic summons for more and more troops to fight Generalissimo Franco's onrushing insurgent armies.

An unceasing river of refugees from the nearby war zone poured into Barcelona, but these homeless people, many carrying children and precious belongings, were quickly taken from the city toward as yet unbesieged towns on the north.

Tall, brawny women stood in the streets,rifles slung over their shoulders while they directed traffic. Others sat behind desks in banks, stores and commercial businesses. Hundreds of women helped feed the milling refugees, tended the wounded and drove trucks.

Britons Demand Help for Spain

LONDON, Jan. 18 (INS)—Faced with a heavy agenda, including a review of the entire international situation in Europe and the Far East, the British Cabinet held its first meeting of the year today.

Important domestic affairs as well as such questions as the Spanish war, the Sino-Japanese conflict, the Italo-French dispute and the Arab-Jewish disorders in the Holy Land confronted the ministers.

Police reinforcements kept crowds of spectators outside 10 Downing street moving and hustled away a group of unemployed who shouted: "Arms for Spain!"

Diplomatic circles suggested the next move may be resumption of Anglo-German talks in London, in view of which Chancellor Hitler's forthcoming Reichstag speech Jan. 30 is being awaited by British government and diplomatic quarters with utmost interest.

Clamor in France To Aid Loyalists

PARIS, Jan. 18 (AP)—The French Cabinet, under steadily increasing demands for aid to government Spain, debated the problem for two and a half hours today. No decision was announced.

Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet, who held the floor throughout, was understood to have maintained France must keep in the good graces of Great Britain by adhering closely to the policy of non-intervention.

SEES U. S. READY FOR AIR BUILDUP

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18 (AP)—Within three years, the House Military Committee heard today, this nation can be turning out warplanes at the rate of 12,000 a year.

Maj.-Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of the army air corps, made this statement, committee members said, in a secret session following an open hearing at which he testified an army survey showed the aircraft industry's productive capacity—now about 2500 planes yearly—could be doubled or quadrupled.

The committee had heard last week from Joseph P. Kennedy, ambassador to Britain, that Germany was capable of turning out 1200 warplanes monthly.

After the executive session, members said Gen. Malin Craig, army chief of staff, had agreed to answer a question by Rep. Short (R., of Missouri, as to whether any immediate invasion of this country was feared.

DEMANDS FOE BE NAMED

Members said Craig would testify tomorrow morning, but it was not definite whether he would answer Short's question at that time.

Short said he and others of the minority in Congress would insist that the army detail the reasons for the proposed $300,000,000 expansion of the air corps recommended by President Roosevelt.

"We want to know the cause for all this and just who is feared, Short added.

Arnold told the committee that four new air bases—two on the midland and one each in Puerto Rico and Alaska—should be built to complete the defenses of the United States.

In addition, he said, the air base in Hawaii should be expanded.

NEW CANAL LOCKS

Meanwhile, it was learned that another set of locks at the Panama Canal, virtually providing a new channel for America's intercoastal "life line," may be financed by a bond issue.

At the outset, Arnold stressed the need for training new personnel to man and maintain the new planes. He said that by expansion of its facilities at San Antonio, Texas, the air corps could double its yearly output of 550 pilots but said the war department did not deem that particular course advisable.

Arnold, 52, has been chief of the corps since Major-General Oscar Westover was killed in a crash last September. He has indicated recently that speed as well as numbers is an objective of the corps.

Meanwhile, Senator Reynolds (D., N. C.) said he planned to introduce a bill to provide military training for Civilian Conservation Corps enrollees, although Mr. Roosevelt has said that he would not favor such a move.

Saves Child, 4, In Blazing Bed

Four-year-olds Kevin Kirk, of Grozier street, Cambridge, owed his life today to the quick thinking of his mother.

Mrs. John Kirk smelled smoke coming from the bedroom. She rushed in and found Kevin surrounded by blazing sheets and blankets.

Snatching him from the bed she telephoned the fire department. Kevin still in her arms.

Firemen extinguished the blaze and confined it to the bedroom. Kevin admitted he took a handful of matches from the kitchen when his mother wasn't looking.

Desperado Escapes In Prison Riddle

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 18 (AP)—The disappearance of Howard Bowman, one-time Ohio desperado, from the state penitentiary puzzled prison officials today.

The 28-year-old convict who was serving a life sentence for bank robberies vanished sometime yesterday. Warden James C. Woodard theorized he probably escaped on one of several supply trucks that left for other state institutions.

How to Get Along in the World

Regulate Your Leisure

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER
Economic Commentator for International News Service and Author of "The Diary of a Prudent Investor" and Other Books on Finance
(Copyright, 1939, by International News Service)

Improvement in modern tools enables modern men and women to produce more and better goods in fewer hours of work.

Modern technology has yielded the working population an extra dividend in the form of increased leisure in recent decades.

This trend has been accentuated by new legislation restricting hours of employment.

Accordingly, after-hour activities are looming increasingly important. They can be used either to dissipate energies or to develop a richer, fuller life.

BALANCED DIET

A balanced diet is recommended for leisure as well as for work.

Americans, with more leisure, are becoming increasingly interested in amateur sports, and new industries, based on making leisure hours happy, are developing rapidly.

The late Arnold Bennett, the novelist who once told the world how to live on 24 hours a day denounced dissipation at night clubs.

"The night life of large cities," the British author observed, "strikes me as being in the main infantile, futile, silly and very harmful . . . I object to being awakened at 2 a. m. by the automobiles of late returners. Nor have I ever been able to comprehend how it is more amusing, more romantic, and more stylish to do at a very late hour what one can do just as well—and better—at an early hour.

"And if I practice this folly, as on rare occasions I do, my judgment of myself the next day (which, of course, is a wasted day) is even more severe than during the actual performance."

WAS A REALIST

I quote Mr. Bennett's remarks because he was not a preacher, but a realist and a pragmatist.

It is perhaps good for the soul of some men to enjoy himself occasionally at night clubs and elsewhere.

The average individual has enough reserve energy occasionally to make an overdraught on his reservoir of strength which permits him to indulge in revelries until 3 o'clock in the morning and to report to work at 9.

The excitement is likely to stimulate his nerves and keep him fit the next day, but the real exhaustion will probably manifest itself the following day.

Habitual revelries of this character perhaps do unfit some men of capacity for business advancement.

The astute observer becomes pessimistic concerning corporations which skimp on maintenance, feeling they are building up trouble for the future. When the individual habitually indulges in night club festivities, when he should be resting, he too is skimping on maintenance.

LEISURE PURSUITS

Such an individual eventually becomes passive during business hours, instead of being creative and active. He puts in hours at his desk, instead of initiating new activities and driving through older policies to successful consummation.

The average man, though painstaking during business hours, is likely to be careless and unsystematic concerning his leisure pursuits.

The real joy of living comes largely in leisure pursuits.

A test of the all-around capacity of a man is the use he makes of his leisure.

25,000 Soviet Ship Workers on Strike

BERLIN, Jan. 18 (INS)—More than 25,000 Soviet workers employed in Russian shipbuilding and armament factories, went on a sit-down strike as a protest against stringent new working regulations, the official German News Agency DNB reported today in a dispatch from Warsaw.

Thousands of secret police forced the sit-down strikers to leave factories using tear gas and armored cars, according to the dispatch. Hundreds of workers were reported arrested and the remainder of the strikers dismissed, DNB said.

HURLEY'S BANK AIDES FACE AXE

Roosevelt administration in the spring of 1933.

In connection with fees, the new governor faces a problem over the fees that were paid to leading Republican lawyers even though the state was headed at that time by Democratic Governor Joseph B. Ely.

SPECULATE ON RESULTS

Whether or not his investigators will go into that phase of the situation is a problem that is interesting to those who have followed the closed bank situation on Beacon Hill.

The promotion problem in the department is one that has interested the Saltonstall probers no end.

They have reports that many of long years of service in the department have actually taught younger employes who might be termed "political favorites" the "ins and outs" of various jobs only to be chagrined later by promotion of the pupils to places for which they had schooled them.

That conditions and other circumstances have served to lower the morale in the department among the employes who have worked at low pay jobs with hopes for improvement blasted by political moves of the higherups.

LARGE SUMS SPENT

Large sums in legal fees have been spent in connection with compromises on notes and other debts that were due the bank in the course of liquidation, it was learned.

In many cases, according to a source close to the probers, "deals" were made and others are in the making at the present time—for the discounting of debts as low as half the amounts borrowed from the banks in halcyon days.

The same applies, it was learned, to sale of realty that was held as assets at the time that the particular bank closed. In many instances, parcels were sold in the liquidating process to those "in the know" at prices far below figures that could have been obtained for the depositors as a result of competitive bidding, according to one of those close to the investigation.

It was learned today that the bank situation might be important enough to place ahead of the anticipated probe of the public works and state department welfare departments.

For that probe, Governor Saltonstall already has asked an appropriation of $11,000 for expenses. It was indicated today that he might ask a similar or higher amount for his probe into the bank situation.

It is known that he is deeply concerned over what has been generally termed as "dissipation" of funds in connection with liquidation of the closed institutions.

BROKEN ANKLE blazed way to successful career as play broker for Adrienne Morrison, mother of three film glamour girls, Constance, Joan and Barbara Bennett. She was formerly an actress. Her latest Broadway hit is "Oscar Wilde."

Weight of Baby Best Health Sign

By ALLAN ROY DAFOE, M. D.
Personal Physician to the Dionne Quintuplets
(Copyright, 1939, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Basing my observations on our experiences with the quintuplets, I would like to give mothers some hints that I hope will prove helpful where there is a new-born babe in the household.

Of course the Quins were premature two months before their time. Thus the care they received was different from that of a normal baby but illustrations of their experiences will prove helpful to all, I think.

When your baby is born he will likely weigh within a few ounces of seven pounds. That is about the weight of the average baby. Of course, heavier babies are quite common.

At the other end of the scale, I had the Quintuplets. On May 28, 1934, when they were born, we weighed them on rather crude scales, and together they weighed 13 pounds six ounces.

It is a very important thing to keep an accurate record of the weight of your child. No other record you can keep will show so accurately how he is thriving. During the first year of life, this weighing is almost indispensable, but it will more than repay any mother to keep this record all through childhood.

We weighed the quintuplets every day for some time. It was necessary because if there was the slightest failing in any of them we had to know it immediately, for none had the strength to put up much of a fight.

With a normal child, the weight should be taken every week for six months, and at least once every two weeks for the ensuing six. After the first year, it is usually enough to weigh monthly.

Mothers are often upset when the baby loses weight during the first week. This is quite natural, the average loss that week being four to eight ounces. After this, your normal child should gain four to eight ounces weekly until he is six months; from then on the gain is less, usually two to four ounces.

Bottle-fed babies rarely gain as rapidly during the first few weeks as do those who are breast-fed. After that, however, gains are often quite normal. They are often more continuous during the latter half of the first year, for the child who has been nursing is almost sure to lose weight when weaned.

The bottle-feeder is slow at the beginning because the delicate digestive organs take time to accustom themselves to cow's milk.

French Expert Sees Crisis Facing World

Civilization must decide between totalitarianism and democracy with no middle ground, Pierre de Lanux of the French Information Center in Paris, told the Foreign Affairs School of Politics meeting today on the Radcliffe campus. Said he:

"If the democracies remain indifferent and lazy as they have been since the treaty at Versailles, then sooner or later they must fight for their shores."

"At daybreak, Mr. Towns left the house. He said he'd kill both of us if we reported what had happened."

Mrs. Lawrence testified she saw no gun but noticed a bulge in Town's pocket and believed he had a revolver concealed.

Under cross-examination she was asked how long she had known Towns.

She said about four years.

"Haven't you kept trysts with him once a week all that time? A—Yes.

William Lawrence, the husband, a man apparently in his late 30's, gave testimony corroborating his wife's story in principal details.

Heroine Mother Fights for Life

son, Alan, in Norfolk street, Cambridge.

The even chance was more than she had asked. She had asked no chance at all. For herself.

She had just crossed Norfolk street, the baby in the carriage, the boy beside her, when there was a crash of cars and a sedan swerved toward the gutter—toward Mrs. Helen Steele and her children.

In the split second when the choice like that is offered, there is no time to pray. There is only chance to act—to take the chance one way, or the other. And the choice lay between the chance of life for her children, the chance of death for herself.

From the handle of the carriage she leaped to the side of the carriage nearest the hurtling car. With one hand she thrust Alan out of the way and sent him sprawling before the auto struck her.

TAKES SHOCK WITH BODY

The carriage was overturned, the infant flung from it unhurt, as the woman took with her own young body the crushing force her children otherwise must have received.

* * *

"An even chance," they said her husband today, as they fought for better odds. That was more than she asked for herself in exchange for the lives of her children.

WE OFTEN HEAR the ladies discussing what they call the servant problem. That and dust are a terrible topic among the ladies.

Now we are not a fellow who makes a practice of sticking his nose into the domestic [illegible] but we have heard so much gab about the servant problem that we have been making a few personal observations on the way and it is our [illegible] that the problem part of the servant problem with many ladies is not being able to get servants to work their heads off for a measly skimpy wage.

New Film Play Picked for Margaret Sullavan

By LOUELLA O PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor International News Service

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 18 (INS) Margaret Sullavan, who snaked into academy awards contention (pardon my race track parlance) after the New York critics named her the year's best actress, has had the M-G-M story department on its toes. Leonid Andreyev's famous Guild play, "He Who Gets Slapped," has finally been chosen for Maggie's first after the stork drops its precious bundle in February.

'STARS IN YOUR EYES' A WHOLE FIRMAMENT OF GRAND FUN

JIMMY DURANTE does a lot of scintillating himself in "Stars in Your Eyes," which opened last night at the Shubert in Boston.

Merman-Durante Play Has Gayety, Zip, Color

By PEGGY DOYLE

Dwight Wiman was supposed to be losing his sleep and tearing his hair at a "must" job of whittling down his "Stars in Your Eyes" show.

But it looked last night as if he could throw away his jackknife.

The Shubert theater audience before which the Wiman musical made its bow was yelling—figuratively speaking—for second and third helpings of what Ethel Merman, Jimmy Durante, Tamara Toumanova and Richard Carlson were dishing out.

Like any Boston first night audience, this was one resplendent in its best bib and tucker, with its company manners restraining its demonstrations of enthusiasm.

If an unsophisticated gal who just likes what she likes can make a guess, though, future "Stars in Your Eyes" audiences, less hampered by polite inhibitions, will be not merely clapping, but whistling and stomping for encores.

And Merman, Durante, Tamara et al will have to give 'em encores. Or else—

Last night's final curtain didn't ring down until some time this early morning, or thereabouts.

So if, on other evenings, there are gonna be more and longer encores, maybe Producer Wiman and his whittlin' knife will have to operate after all on the in-between material.

Only, for the love of change and progress, Mr. Wiman, don't whittle off too many of those funny cartoons and moving pictures of what you borrowed so effectively from Hollywood.

The zip and color and gaily cock-eyed timing they lend 'Stars in Your Eyes" might be more than a little of what the theater needs.

Anyhow, Mr. Wiman, there's plenty neither you nor anybody else would whittle, for instance:

Merman's "This Is It" song . . . the "Okay for Sound" number with Dawn Roland and Bennie McAvoy . . . Tamara in Merman in "Just a Little Bit More" . . . Merman's "I'll Pay the Check" . . . Merman and Carlson in the cham-

ENACT DEFENSE PROGRAM

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE on national defense, as was confidently expected, is a thoroughly comprehensive statement of what he properly considers to be "a minimum program for the necessities of defense."

The country sees eye to eye with Mr. Roosevelt on this vital question of adequate national defense.

The Hearst newspapers, always advocates of preparedness for defensive war as the best means of being prepared to assure the country of peace, are glad to commend him for a program which obviously reflects the best judgment of our best authorities on KEEPING AMERICA OUT OF WAR.

The President has always been fundamentally sound on national defense.

VIEWED INDEPENDENTLY and apart from all other Administration policies and utterances, his present program of national defense is sound.

However, and this is to be regretted, it is impossible for the American people to view it independently and apart from all other policies and utterances.

It is not possible, and of course not wise, to view it apart from the quarrel provoking utterances of Administration spokesmen like Secretary Ickes and Senator Pittman.

Nor is it possible to ignore such utterances by Mr. Roosevelt himself as those in his Chicago speech advocating "quarantines" against aggressor nations, and his more recent message to Congress broadly hinting at warlike economic sanctions against powerful countries.

To be sure, Mr. Roosevelt now says that "every American is aware of the peaceful intentions of the government," and that "every American knows that we have no thought of aggression."

But how can the people be sure of that, when Mr. Ickes and Mr. Pittman and even Mr. Roosevelt so often speak the VOICE OF AGGRESSION?

A quarantine of any nation would certainly be aggression.

Economic sanctions against any nation, which it would have to resist or STARVE, would certainly be WAR-PROVOKING aggression.

THE COUNTRY wholeheartedly approves the defense recommendations made by the President, and will wholeheartedly support Congress in acting promptly to supply the minimum defensive establishments and equipment he suggests.

But the country is frankly disturbed by the continued influential presence in the Administration of irresponsible war-mongerers and subversive saboteurs of our friendly and peaceful relations with other nations.

The country wants adequate defensive establishments and equipment, but SOLELY for defense. They should not fall into the hands of those who THINK aggression and TALK aggression, and would exhaust our resources and man power in AGGRESSIVE WARS.

The President's modified national defense program should be enacted by the Congress.

At the same time, however, the Congress should also enact legislation making it absolutely sure that the national defense armaments will not be employed in foreign wars WITHOUT A REFERENDUM VOTE BY THE PEOPLE.

WHY THE BIG HURRY?

GOTHAM'S PANORAMA OF LIGHT

Powerfully, It Lures Human Moths

"high kicking and low thinking," as descriptive of the haut monde of his day.

Pete bore a famous name, he was handsome and generous, had a flair for clothes, and a genial way which always made him the life of the party. But, after a few years of pleasant dalliance, he was broke—flatter than a flounder. The old family fortune had somehow oozed away.

He got some backing, staged a show, flopped, did a short stretch as a theatrical press agent, made a brief comeback as a wine agent, tried to sell life insurance, and finally became a race track tout. I saw him three or four years ago, shabby and let down, pouches under his eyes, the years [illegible] rowing in [illegible]

AND THEN I saw Pete just the other day, [illegible] prosperous-looking [illegible] Bond Street tailoring, his Harvard A. B. liberty ties and his inside tip on the [illegible] race. He was somewhat reticent about his new job but I got the story, partly from him and partly from one of our mutual friends.

Pete is the [illegible] for the swankiest midnight [illegible] closing spot in New York. In funds again, he lives at an exclusive club and circulates in the inner strongholds of Mayfair and lures iridescent moths to the white lights.

NIGHT CLUBS [illegible] from the first, knew the value of the newspaper patronage. During Prohibition years this was not quite the asset it is today, as there was at least a hint of something furtive and illicit about the speakeasies and the higher social caste had certain reserves about too much blatant night [illegible] notoriety.

That was left to raffish "sugar daddies" and "butter-and-egg men." And how quaint, even in this brief span of years are these one-time world tags of nocturnal revel!

This all [illegible] is past. Never before has the Social Register's main cast of characters been so elaborately pictured, so flailed over by the columnists and town wits, so garishly portrayed in even its most casual elbow-bending and [illegible] exercises.

The [illegible] press agent was a good [illegible] Straight into the [illegible] rode the gallant [illegible]

WHICH BRINGS me to my friend, Pete, who, incidentally, [illegible] off those [illegible] brations. That isn't his name, but certain [illegible] are necessary in telling about him, and that will do.

Pete, rounding 50 now, was one of the lustiest of the town's high-steppers, soon after the turn of the century. I believe it was in reference to Pete that the late Ned Hamilton [illegible] tossed off the phrase,

'BUGS' BAER SAYS:

ENGLAND will spend one hundred million dollars to build bomb-proof cottages for two. The new idea of a cosy little nest is a concrete turret with a reinforced steel attic.

THE ENGLISH garden with its rhododendrons and dahlias must give way to The British Air Raid Bungalow, consisting of a bomb-proof cellar with a southern exposure.

HAPPY VILLAGES will be modeled on those of prairie dogs with more exits than entrances. And plenty of both. England expects trouble. And expects it postage due. There's enough peace in Europe now to start six or seven wars.

THOSE WARS will consist of bombing babies and hospitals as approved in co-operative blueprints signed in Spain and China. That's why the English marriage contracts now read: "Do you take this man to be your duly appointed sergeant-in-charge-of-barracks? Do you take him for battle or for worse? In defeat or victory? To respect, honor and obey and to follow after? All in favor take one pace forward."

THE ENGLISH don't scare easily and they build bomb-proofs just for the maids and butlers. You will still find the master out on the lawn with his walrus moustache and his range-finding binocles.

WAR IS [illegible] War and [illegible] body would have it [illegible] ent. Even in a bomb-proof turret the inquisitive Briton will want to know what's going on. And like a chicken going places in a crate he will always have his head out.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

THE OLD NATIONS . . . Spain and France, Mexico and Peru, know something, still, about America that is a closed book. Never learning what the pioneer spirit was, yet still a modern heritage of theirs . . . ignore the beauty and necessity of planning in our personal life.

Some time, however small, form proud, however brief, in which we may work with others and stand apart from the shrillness and pressures of the outer world.

Most of us live by preference, in "do-will pandemonium." The very thought of solitude appalls us. "RING UP MABEL . . . PHONE FOR FRED" . . . "TURN ON THE RADIO" . . . "LET'S STAGE SOMETHING!" So we seek escape from Doris Eaton, the elder people were wiser. They did not try to run away from themselves. Rather, they built "quiet places apart."

AS A YUCATECO lives in the lovely patio of the Far West, I do so myself, or perhaps my Spanish lineage for appropriate. I remember I knew the mighty hill . . . Hermosa, 1905, without trees and in great fear.

Down as steep a hill as Hermosa is Lombard . . . crooked and cobbled. Once I drove up it in a hack. Its steepness terrified me. My mother knew where my terror lay. Between each cobble grew grass. Grass was safe. I spent that ride on the floor of the hack, my feet braced against the opposite seat, my eyes glued to the grass. I remember the driver's astonished face when I emerged, but I refused to look at him. I refused to look at anything but grass.

Years later I was to see a picture of Lombard Street, San Francisco, and I knew that I had climbed it. But I remembered only the grass.

A MINIATURE MADRID . . . Civil war is the terrible thing it always is and shall be. But with the exception of those who risk their lives in the front trenches, perhaps the least affected by it are the men and women who are left behind. Lonely, yes, but safe. Safe, that is, from bombs and bullets.

A miniature Madrid filled with the broken dreams and seething fear of banished men . . . where I myself was to know desperate, bewildered years. Yet, with those years, such glimpses of peace as I have never known before or since. For back of those brawling bars . . . beneath those grim gambling tables . . . hidden from the outbursts of greed or murder which fouled the street above, lay the "patios."

Not to be seen from above, those patios. One came to them through the upper trading rooms . . . then down a rickety stair . . . across a dark, many-alcoved cellar where the family slept through the long glare . . . and so across the sill into a small walled space of fruit and flowers and smooth swept earth where the family life went on.

• • •

THOSE PATIOS never have I seen their like. Filled with laughter and song and the heart-rending scent of golden oil and new-made wine . . . fried cheese . . . and home made sausages. With Carmelita tending corn cakes, the green gloom of some ancient fig tree black against the warm gold of her skin, her lips as fragrant as her scarlet rose . . .

Little "places apart" . . . that went on and on despite what happened overhead. Quiet, walled gardens that fed the soul as well as the body.

How we need them today!

HOW WOULD YOU LIKE A HERBARIUM?

Girl About Town

by MARGUERITE DOWNEY

WHILE not trying to make it June in January for the dear reader, Earle Anderson, Lowell Institute, Chelsea High, Tech, has some interesting ideas of the subject.

As a result of years of experience in the classroom, and as a Boy Scout leader, Earle has been developing a herbarium section in pen and ink . . . a unique idea.

Every page is devoted to a special type of flower with complete pressed specimen. Wrapped in wax paper sheets are such pressed flowers as . . . [illegible] . . . Each page has a description of the flower, and the date and place it was found. Earle has also added [illegible] . . . to the collection.

As a result of his hobby, Earle has become a well known figure in the fields and woods of Lowell, Wilmington, Billerica and Chelmsford. He has been asked to lecture before [illegible] . . . and has been invited to add his collection to [illegible] . . .

THE WORLD GIRLS of the Arts Club, Lowell, are a powerful group, as I learned when I was invited to attend the club's annual banquet at the Hotel Vendome. After the fifth wine Dr. Dodo announced that the club's membership had increased 100 per cent in the last year, and that it was now an international circle with members in Paris, Rome, Vienna, Berlin, Tokyo and Shanghai. Dr. Dodo's own daughter, Mrs. Ruth Dodo Bigelow, is a member of the Paris branch.

Mrs. Bigelow, who is now living in Paris, is the wife of Lieut. Bigelow, U. S. A., who is attached to the American Embassy there. Mrs. Bigelow is a graduate of Wellesley College, and is a member of the Junior League of Paris. She is also a member of the Paris Opera Ballet Club, and has appeared in several performances of the ballet.

Mrs. Bigelow is a brunette with dark eyes and hair. She is very petite, and has a delightful personality. She is very popular in Paris society, and is a frequent guest at the homes of the diplomatic corps.

HANKIES and what we're apt to say of illustrations anything these days. We've seen some with Broadway bright light signs scattered over them, for the nitwits. French railway signs would intrigue the traveler, and think of being able to match your mood of poignant nostalgia (it's fun to have that ailment once in a while) with a neck kerchief which says tenderly, "Je pense a vous, je pense a vous, je pense—" Well, the designer who thought of the scenic affair we show you (his name is Burmel) made up a grand series of Boston-scene scarves and hankies. YOU CAN BE BEAUTIFUL

Astringent Eye Cream Refines Wrinkled Skin

By ARLINE GOULD

IT'S WHEN everything is going merry as a marriage bell . . . when there are more exciting things to do in one week than 24 hours a day will allow, or there's the dazzlement of discovering that you've met the kind of person you were sure never existed outside the covers of a best-seller . . . that's when it's tough to realize youth's preliminaries toward departure show up around your eyes.

Try to fool yourself though you might. That this is a gray day which casts shadows, or the sun streaming into your mirror-window is too harsh, or a little catching up on sleep might be the thing. It's time to find out what the most unusual eye cream we've ever found can do about it all.

You've heard us rave about highly emolient eye creams that softened and smoothed the skin. They deserved their praise. But this new eye cream does more. It has additional astringent properties which draw to a new, fine, firm grain the skin around the eyes which all too easily becomes lax and wrinkled.

We can't imagine why no one thought of this marvelous astringent idea before. Also the cream takes with us first of all because it is so lightly emolient that it almost pours. It is one of the fastest absorbing creams we've ever run across. Certainly the fastest of its particular classification. That has possibilities. You might use it during a long, soapy and fragrant evening bath if you don't want to go to bed with your eyes encircled with glistening goo.

To learn about this highly unusual new astringent eye cream, phone Arline Gould, LIberty 4000, week-days until five-thirty, or write her at the Boston American, including a stamped, self-addressed envelope

Making camp in the big city, even if one has to leave Boston, is not quite the experience, say, of becoming a Chinese missionary . . . Jack Conway, this paper's sports editor, drew these comforting comparisons in a keynote speech at the great dinner in honor of John A. Malloy at the Copley Plaza last night . . .

George Holland

He spoke for the editorial staff of the daily paper so long edited by Mr. Mullen until his elevation to the general management of the Hearst newspapers.

It was a comforting speech to the boys and girls who dug out the news and prepared it for the public under the Malloy regime . . . It begat a cheery mood an hour before "the last call for the bar" and the Merry-Go-Round went round to smiles and laughter instead of swivelling through a moat of tears.

With a bit of weeping to [illegible] Jack Malloy was [illegible] a writer of sincerity. Writer may be the wrong word . . . Sincerity isn't . . .

Your correspondent really believes that at least half of last night's gathering—those who really knew Jack Malloy—would have been present to pay him homage if the next railroad entry on his expense blank read "Boston to Omaha," instead of "Boston to New York" . . . CENSORED TO PROTECT YOU

Used cars as well as new ones have a definite value. When an ad offering a used car at a price far below the average for the same make and model is submitted to The Record American it is immediately investigated, and if it is found that the automobile has been used for commercial or other purposes which would in a short time abnormally depreciate the value of the car such statements must be inserted in the ad.

Other forms of protection offered readers and advertisers alike are: No ads are accepted from dealers unless the business phone or address is given in the ad. Statements in ads submitted by dealers which would tend to lead the reader to believe that the car was offered for sale by a private party are not acceptable.

It is the sincere aim of The Record-American to maintain for the public as well as the advertisers one safe medium for the sale and exchange of used cars. Any infraction of the above rules should be reported at once to the classified advertising manager—Liberty 4000.

HENRY — Signs Are So Helpful — By Carl Anderson

Austen Lake:

Lines to a Dear, Dead Baseball Training Era

ONE SEARCHES VAINLY FOR those old-time flag-stop stations in the current spring training schedules of the Bees and Red Sox. The home-coming itinerary for late March and early April lists only such metropolitan stop-offs as Columbia, S. C., Savannah, Ga., Roanoke, Va., where the athletes live in Oriental luxury and eat from French a la carte menus.

AUSTEN LAKE

Gone are the old-time spring homecomings when the Boston clubs zizagged north through share cropper settlements in the tobacco, cotton and turpentine belts. They are one with melancholy memory—unforgettable hamlets of the deep south, like Mimeville, La., Scobo, N. C., and Slave Creek, Ga., where the barnstorming Braves and pre-Quinn Sox unloaded on some narrow gauge railhead and trundled overland by horse-bus to play on some mountain-ledge against a team of wildcat yokels.

Now we trek north in regal splendor. But then we lived in a suitcase.

The [illegible] and mud-puddle villages of the South were baseball frantic then. They paid fat guarantees for a peep at the publicized heroes. And often a town's silver cornet band would greet us at the depot and wind a few turns around the central plaza, where the merchants had put up their shutters and the entire citizenry thronged to the ball park. And afterward the local Methodist [illegible] would spread a cold potato-salad feast with slivers of veal-loaf and wedges of strawberry shortcake and the [illegible] would gobble swiftly before packing their still-steaming uniforms and hustling off to some other haymow.

Some Were Fun, Some Not!

THE GOOFY ERA OF SOUTHERN BASEBALL travel is over. But it was fun in spots. Some of the Dixie towns were arched with sycamores, whose leafy arms dripped with Spanish moss and leaned down in eternal benediction. Dooryards flamed with poinsettia and oleander. Honeysuckle draped the trellises. Pickaninny nurses wheeled baby baskets. Odors of gingerbread and pan-fried chicken pervaded the air. Broad beamed and bandana-ed mammies looked from kitchen doors and spoke the lazy diction of the land.

But not always! There were towns like Massanee, Ga., where lumber and turpentine mills leaned against the gentle rise and sent their nauseous stench over the country. Dwellings were in the severe style of Civil War brick, propped off the ground on stone jacks. The streets were pitted with pools of water and the ball ground was improvised from a corn field. It was at Massanee too, where the bell-hop was a Confederate veteran who stomped up uncarpeted hallways and unlocked rooms where things scuttled into the walls and empty flasks and left overs from previous tenants littered the corners.

The Old Order Changeth

YES SIR AND MAM. [illegible] Now we walk North by easy stages, having at [illegible] Hot Springs, Va., where a tiled, out-door swimming pool is fed with crystal artesian waters and lit at night by submarine lights. Or the Jefferson in Columbia and the Richmond in Augusta, where the rustic charm of old Dixie is smothered by modern polychrome [illegible].

You [illegible] we [illegible].

I think I [illegible] sort of back country pet nick and find myself [illegible] [illegible] where the Red Sox hockey demon [illegible] started a fat fire in the overheated hotel lobby and [illegible] to the ground. Or Middleville, S. C. The little [illegible] [illegible] section of the valleys and where one may [illegible] and hear his voice come echoing [illegible] [illegible] Bounces among the craggy rocks. The [illegible] of Mr. [illegible] shrill, once uttered never dies but goes [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

SKIERS NEED SNOW, MR. WEATHERMAN! Twice, now, in the past week, snow has been forecast, but it missed New Hampshire and Northern Ski Centers! Snow is again predicted for tonight, and the third time won't fail, we hope!

TRAIL TRACKS from last week end:

Searching for snow we set off for Lake Sunapee N. H. last Saturday. For a while it looked as if there would be plenty of the cold white stuff but the snow storm that was predicted took a detour around New Hampshire. However with a report to St. Peter on our return we arrived at our destination in the late afternoon for our annual visit to Mrs. Peabody's run by Mrs. Ernest John Peabody. The inn is situated in a natural setting of unsurpassed splendor and overlooks Sunapee Lake across which the mountains held a magical range of snow capped mountains. Quite a sight.

Pete. Bob Quinn didn't have any trouble signing Buddy Hassett to a Bees contract . . . The ex-Dodger was so tickled to get back with Casey Stengel that he lost no time affixing his signature on the dotted line . . . Connie Smythe says that there'll either be eight clubs in the N. H. L. next season or else . . . Harvey "Busher" Jackson of the Maple Leafs celebrated his 28th birthday yesterday . . . And, Syl Apps, who can't miss the All Star team this season, is 23 years old today . . . Dan Howley, who is now business manager of the Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League, is in town for three days . . . He's home to see his brother Leo, who is recovering from a serious illness . . . "Howling" Dan has been a hockey fan for 25 years . . . He had a N. H. L. franchise back in 1916 but was unable to interest any Bostonian in pro hockey . . . The Junior Olympics will face their sternest opposition when they tackle Dartmouth at the Garden Friday night . . . Eddie Jeremiah is rounding out another great Big Green sextet at Hanover . . . At the close of the first period last night there was more snow on the Garden ice than at any time this season . . . The Bruins and Maple Leafs travelled at such a terrific clip throughout that session that there was about as much snow as ice on the playing surface . . . Eddie Shore received a fifty percent rebate from the punch on the chin he took from Red Horner the night of the "Ace" Bailey affair during the first period . . . He measured Horner and uncorked a beautiful right, which spun the Toronto captain a full revolution . . . But, for the fact that Mickie Ion handed out two minors, one a misconduct and five minor penalties during the opening chapter, the game might have slipped out of control . . . Connie Smythe communicated on and argued about the game from the press stand . . . He was in rare form . . . If the other N. H. L. clubs played the same type of hockey here that the Maple Leafs do, the Garden will be a sell out for every game . . . Herbie Schmidt and Syl Apps, who top all N. H. L. center ice men, were absent a second off last night . . . Connie Smythe will give the Bruins $25,000 and an experienced left wing for Woody Dumart . . . SMYTHE HUNTS DEFENSE PLAYERS

College Ice Ace Plays Weekends

By BILL GRIMES

On the recommendation of Syl Apps, his star center ice man, Connie Smythe took Ken McAdams, who is the outstanding all around athlete at McMasters University which is located at Hamilton, Ont., to the Maple Leaf training camp last fall.

Before his Leafs were beaten 2 to 1 last night by the Bruins at the Garden in what was in all probability the most thrilling game of the season, Connie Smythe came up with an innovation, a college athlete playing pro hockey week ends.

At the beginning of the season, Connie Smythe appeared to have a corner on the defense market, for between his Maple Leafs and the Syracuse Stars, he had no less than a dozen on his rosters.

Syracuse lost Shannon, Howard and Fox through injuries and young Connell died from a heart ailment. When Bingo Kampman was hurt, Smythe paid the Detroit Red Wings $7500 for "Bucko" McDonald.

With the exception of Jimmy Fowler, whom he sent down to Eddie Powers, Smythe has been unable to restock Syracuse with defense men.

SENT FOR McADAMS

A few weeks ago, Smythe conceived the idea of getting Ken McAdams to play for Syracuse week ends. He sent for McAdams and offered him $1000 to play for the Stars on Sunday nights. As a further inducement, Smythe agreed to give McAdams a two-year contract for $3500.

Ken McAdams is head of the athletic council at McMasters. He was captain of the football team and is the leader of the hockey team, which plays in the Intermediate Group. And, he sings tenor in the university glee club.

After listening to Smythe's propositions, McAdams stated that he didn't think it would be exactly "cricket" if he let his college down. Always quick on the trigger, Smythe pointed out that by playing with Syracuse, McAdams would put McMasters University on the map. Connie admitted that he never heard of McMasters College.

Finally McAdams was swung around to Smythe's way of thinking. He then remembered that he was booked to speak to the Boy Scout next Sunday night and therefore would be able to report to Manager Eddie Powers this weekend. And, furthermore, he had contracted for another Sunday night's engagement about the middle of February and would be obliged to pass up pro hockey that week.

Connie Smythe believes that Ken McAdams will be a star defense man in the N. H. L. within four or five years.

LEAFS AT PEAK

Although they have loafed for a week before tackling the Maple Leafs last night, the Bruins were at the very peak of their game. And, the same is true of Toronto, which despite the fact that played four games in six nights.

In all probability, the game would have developed into a Donnybrook but for the fact that Mickie Ion was refereeing.

There has always been intense rivalry between the Bruins and Toronto and the players were not pulling their punches or their checks last night.

Eddie Shore and Red Horner swapped a few punches during the first period and Ray Getliffe and "Bingo" Kampman engaged in a short wrestling match in the final chapter. It took four policemen to restore order.

All through the game it was very apparent that free for all was in the offing but Ion managed to keep the game under control and the 16,000 hockey enthusiasts who sat in on the contest witnessed one of the most thrilling and hardest fought games played here in years.

Welcome Home, Dad

Johnny Allen, star Cleveland Indians pitcher, gets a big welcome from Johnny, Jr., and King, his prize bird dog, as he returns to his home here, after undergoing an operation on his throwing arm in Cleveland. A bone chip was removed from the arm, which is still in a sling.

Armstrong Bout Goal of Ambers

The hopes of Lou Ambers, Herkimer Hurricane, for a return bout with Henry Armstrong, will rest upon his clash at the Boston Garden a week from Friday night with Paul Junior of Lewiston, Me., in the 10-round feature of the Goodwin A. C. boxing show.

If Ambers decisively wins over Paul Junior, the N. Y. boxing commission will order Armstrong to put his lightweight championship on the line against Ambers early in February.

It will be the first appearance of one of boxing's real top-flighters in Boston in many years and the signing of Ambers and Paul Junior, New England's best 135-pounder, was the signal for a renewal of interest in the sport hereabouts.

Battle Royal On Price Card

A championship bout between Myer "Curly" Donchin and King Kong Frankenstein, and a novel battle royal highlight the weekly wrestling show promoted by Sam Price tonight at the Boston Arena.

Donchin, the Jewish Jolter from Jersey City, and King Kong, new terror of the wrestling brigade, collide in the main bout, two falls out of three, with Donchin's title and belt at stake.

The battle royal will include eight men and the referee.

Preliminaries will be Pete Jance vs. Les Ryan from Fordham, Steve Passas, ex-junior heavy champion, vs. Georges Carpentier from Canada, colorful Count Otto Von Zuppe, the German nobleman, vs. Chick Layden from Duke University, and Art Grennon vs. the elusive Tiger Flowers.

DonMeade Wiser For Error

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 18 (AP)—Once the roughest, toughest jockey in the business, a wiser but by no means more subdued Don Meade is riding winners again—with the philosophic conviction his enforced layoff of two and a half years was the best thing that ever happened to him.

"It made me stop and think," Meade said today at Hialeah Park, where he has booted home a dozen winners in six days. "I was throwing money away like it was water; I wasn't saving anything. When I think of what a fool I was——." He sighed and shook his head.

Apparently at the height of his career, with a victory in virtually every major stake race behind him, Meade was ruled off the turf for betting on horses other than those he rode.

"It happened just at the right time," he said. "If it had been any earlier I would have been too young to profit by it. With a wife to take care of and everything, it made me settle down and look ahead."

Meade said his reinstatement last summer was like getting a reprieve from a death sentence.

"It was just like starting life all over again," he grinned.

Don believes he is a better rider than when he was ruled off.

"The layoff gave my nerves a chance to rest for the first time in six years," he said.

Meade certainly has lost none of the fire that took him to the top. Perhaps he isn't as cocky as when he rode Colonel E. R. Bradley's Broker's Tip to victory in the rowdy 1933 Kentucky Derby, but he is just as confident as ever. In his first meeting since the suspension he rode 15 winners in 20 days at Tropical Park.

Conceding that the average jockey's career lasts six years or less, he believes he will be in the saddle for another decade.

"I don't have to force my weight down," he said. "And I'll never lose my nerve." Meade normally weighs about 108 pounds, and he has the physique of a boxer, with remarkably developed forearms that help him hold up a tired horse's head.

DAVE WILSON HAS 11 WINNERS IN TWO DAYS!

That peerless handicapper, Dave Wilson, made 11 winners in two days when he romped home with six at Hialeah Park yesterday. Dave had five winners Monday, including the Daily Double which paid $185.00.

Yesterday the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser expert compiled the best record in years set up by any handicapper when he came up with six winners, one second and one third in eight.

Six winners, a second and third!

Sounds incredible, but here's proof.

Wilson's best bet in the first race, Spin On, was scratched. His second choice, Giboir, came in second.

Learner, his best in the second race, finished third.

DAVE WILSON

Then the procession started.

Six in a row!

Cruising, in the third, paid $6.80.

Knight Gallant, in the fourth, paid $4.60.

Balmy Spring, in the fifth, paid $7.60.

Floragina, in the sixth, Dave's best bet of the day, paid $3.90.

Play Gold, in the seventh, paid $6.80.

Flag Song, in the eighth, paid $5.10.

WILSON HAD THEM ALL.

Where can you find a handicapper to compare with him?

"Win with Wilson," the slogan at horsetracks in the East, Middle Atlantic States and deep South.

You can't go wrong.

Ed Barrow Named Czar of Yankees

NEW YORK, Jan. 18 (AP)—Edward G. Barrow, 71 years old and a powerful character in every way, is the new president and absolute dictator of World Champion New York Yankees.

As a fitting reward for nearly 20 years of service with the club as its secretary and business manager, Barrow was unanimously named to fill the vacancy created by the death last Friday of Colonel Jacob Ruppert, whose wealth combined with Barrow's baseball wisdom to create the Yankee empire.

Though he left no explicit instructions in the matter, the colonel doubtless would be happy to know that the men he placed in charge of the Yankees at his death had passed on complete power to his old lieutenant. The colonel's brother, George Ruppert, declined the presidential post at the meeting of the estate's directors and assured the election of Barrow.

An active figure in baseball for more than 40 years and acknowledged to possess one of the shrewdest brains in the business, Barrow is the proper man to carry on the Yankee tradition of victory. Only in the more important matters, like for instance the sale of a Yankee property, will he consult with his three fellow trustees—George Ruppert, Frederick Grant and H. Garrison Silleck, Jr.

NO REAL CHANGE

"There won't be any real change," he said last night. "I always made the decisions, and it was only very seldom that Colonel Ruppert questioned by judgment. I think we'll rock along about as usual. I wouldn't be surprised if we won another championship this year."

George Weiss, by Colonel Ruppert's express request, will continue as directing force of the vast Yankee farm system which he created and brought to its present perfection. He plans no immediate alterations in the system.

For all his mounting years, Barrow still is a strong, gusty individual. He was a fighting field leader for many a year before he moved into the Yankee organization, and he probably would be a bad man to tangle with now. He is a member of the old school of baseball, a product of the days when a successful manager was at least willing to try to whip any man on his club.

Who Is The Shadow? Mystery Wrestler ¦ Makes Bid for Casey's Title

By JACK CONWAY

IT IS SELDOM that a mystery wrestler has aroused as much public interest as "The Shadow" who will try to win the world's heavyweight championship by pinning Steve Casey's brawny shoulders to the mat at a Paul Bowser mat carnival at the Garden tomorrow night.

Mr. Boston

In addition to concealing his identity, "The Shadow" has proved he is one of the world's foremost grapplers. His list of victims include the names of Dan O'Mahony, Yvon Robert and Jim Casey. Danno and Robert are former world's title holders, and they have met with only a few defeats since relinquishing their championships.

Who is "The Shadow?"

As I have watched the powerful giant pound his opponents into submission, often by illegal tactics, I have compared him with some of the famous mat stars I have seen in action.

Ed Don George, Maurice Robert, Marvin Westenburg and Leo Numa have been mentioned as possibly being "The Shadow."

If "The Shadow" is unmasked by Casey it may be revealed that instead of being an American, the mysterious heavyweight is a foreign star making his first American invasion. There would appear to be some logic to this belief.

Australia and New Zealand have produced some new mat stars during the past few years. They have been able to defeat the best of our American wrestlers, and it is possible that one of these newcomers is the man behind the mask.

If such is the case, it is not a certainty that Casey will be able to toss "The Shadow." The masked grappler may set wrestling precedent by winning the world's championship tomorrow night.

On the form he has shown in his Boston appearances, "The Shadow" has the necessary ability to make a stout-hearted bid for the title. "The Shadow" is a finished wrestler in addition to being one of the most powerful men appearing on the mat today.

Casey Will Have Mental Hazard

CASEY WILL be under a mental hazard when he enters the ring. The unknown in anything always causes unease.

If Steve knew who he was risking his title against, he would not worry as much as he will when he faces "The Shadow." The fact "The Shadow" has already won from O'Mahony, Robert and Jim Casey has convinced the champion the challenger has plenty of ability.

I do not believe Steve would have agreed to meet "The Shadow" if the latter had not used Brother Jim so roughly. The champion's family pride made it necessary for him to try to secure revenge for the crushing defeat administered to his brother.

Since coming to the United States, Casey has displayed remarkable wrestling form and tremendous power. He has scored a few short of 300 straight mat victories during his career and does not believe that "The Shadow" or anybody else can pin him.

Gus Sonnenberg, former world's champion, will try to continue his sensational comeback campaign when he collides with Jim Coffield in a special bout on the Casey-"The Shadow" card. The old Dynamiter has regained his wrestling magic, and is thumping over the opposition with his flying tackle.

Pastor's Ring Class Gives Him Chance

BOB PASTOR'S boxing class and speed give him a chance of winning against any heavyweight in the world. Pastor would probably give Joe Louis more trouble than Max Baer, Lou Nova or Tony Galento, current leaders in the list of contenders.

Bob will be back in a Boston ring tomorrow night when he will clash with "Tiger" Warrenton, Nova Scotia heavyweight champion, in a ten-round bout at the Argonne A. A.'s opening show at Mechanics Building. In previous bouts here, Pastor won the decision over Al McCoy and Tony Shucco.

Pastor is an exceptionally good boxer, and punches hard. Bob has complete confidence in his own ability, and I do not believe he is concerned over the fact Warrenton is a terrific right hand puncher.

It is Jimmy Johnston's plan to keep Pastor boxing regularly as he feels that Joe Louis will eventually have to meet him.

Tomorrow night's bout offers real opportunity for "Tiger" Warrenton. The latter is a big, powerful fellow with a tremendous sock in his right hand. It will be interesting to see what happens if Warrenton can wind up one of his right hand swings and plant it on Pastor's jaw.

Casey, Shadow on Edge For Battle at Garden

Still Battling Over Referee

With discussions about the referee still a main point of contention, Steve (Crusher) Casey, world's heavyweight wrestling champion, and The Shadow, mysterious heavyweight, went through their last strenuous workouts for their title bout tomorow night at the Boston Garden.

The workouts were much like they have been all week, Casey, who claims he is in the best shape of his career, whirled through a session of better than one and one-half hours, with the time evenly divided between working his Kerry Flip and trying to perfect a defense against the headlock which is worked so devastatingly by The Shadow.

Meanwhile, the hooded grappler roughed up three training mates, and did it with his headlock.

Also present in the gym again yesterday was Gus Sonnenberg, dynamite of Dartmouth fame, who clashes with Jim Coffield, big Missourian, in a special bout. Gus dove headlong like a bullet all day and at the finish said his flying tackle was working well.

In the semifinal, Rebel Bob Russell, of Newport, will meet The Sheik

Other bouts include Harry Jacobs vs. Jack Smith, Pat Reilly vs. Frank Brown and Pat Kelley vs. Stanley Sitkowski.

THE SHADOW gives spar mate the old dipsy-do as he winds up training for match with Steve Casey.

SERIOUS MIEN. Bob Pastor, who went 10 rounds with Joe Louis, and Trainer Fred Brown, don't look any too optimistic as they await tomorrow's bout with Tiger Terry Warrington.

Warrington, Pastor Here

Bob Pastor, challenger for the crown of Joe Louis and "Tiger" Warrington, checked into town last night in the well known pink. Pastor and Warrington are fighting in a ten-round battle for the Argonne A. A. at Mechanics Building tomorrow night and the winner has been promised a match with Tommy Farr or "Two Top" Tony Galento.

Warrington has not lost a fight in the last three years and his clean cut win over Al McCoy a few weeks ago in Montreal, stamps him as one of the leading contenders for the heavyweight crown.

Bob Pastor who went ten rounds with champion Joe Louis is one of the leading aspirants for the heavyweight title.

A splendid preliminary card has been arranged by matchmaker Eddie Mack and 38 rounds of fighting fights will be on tap at the "Battlefield of Action" show at Mechanics Building.
